Bridge financing plan on the table

After a five-year delay, a financing mechanism for the construction of a second bridge over the barge canal which divides the northern and southern halves of West Sacramento will go before the West Sacramento City Council for discussion on Jan. 17.

The improvements to be constructed also include road improvements, the construction of a new sewage treatment plant (or, alternatively, fee collection to pay for Sacramento County to treat West Sacramento wastes), and drainage and drinking water service costs.

A rail bridge and other "conditional" construction could be approved from the financing district after the mandatory projects are completed and if financing is available.

To raise the money for these projects, two special "Mello-Roos" financing districts are proposed, each to include a per-acre annual assessment.

One district will be made up of property in the planned Southport Industrial Park, which would be taxed at a rate of $1,032 per gross acre of undeveloped property and $4,689 per net acre of developed property. These annual assessments could increase up to two percent annually after the base year beginning in July of 1998.

That district would be authorized to raise up to $32.5 million to pay off the bonds sold to fund the construction of a bridge and other planned improvements.

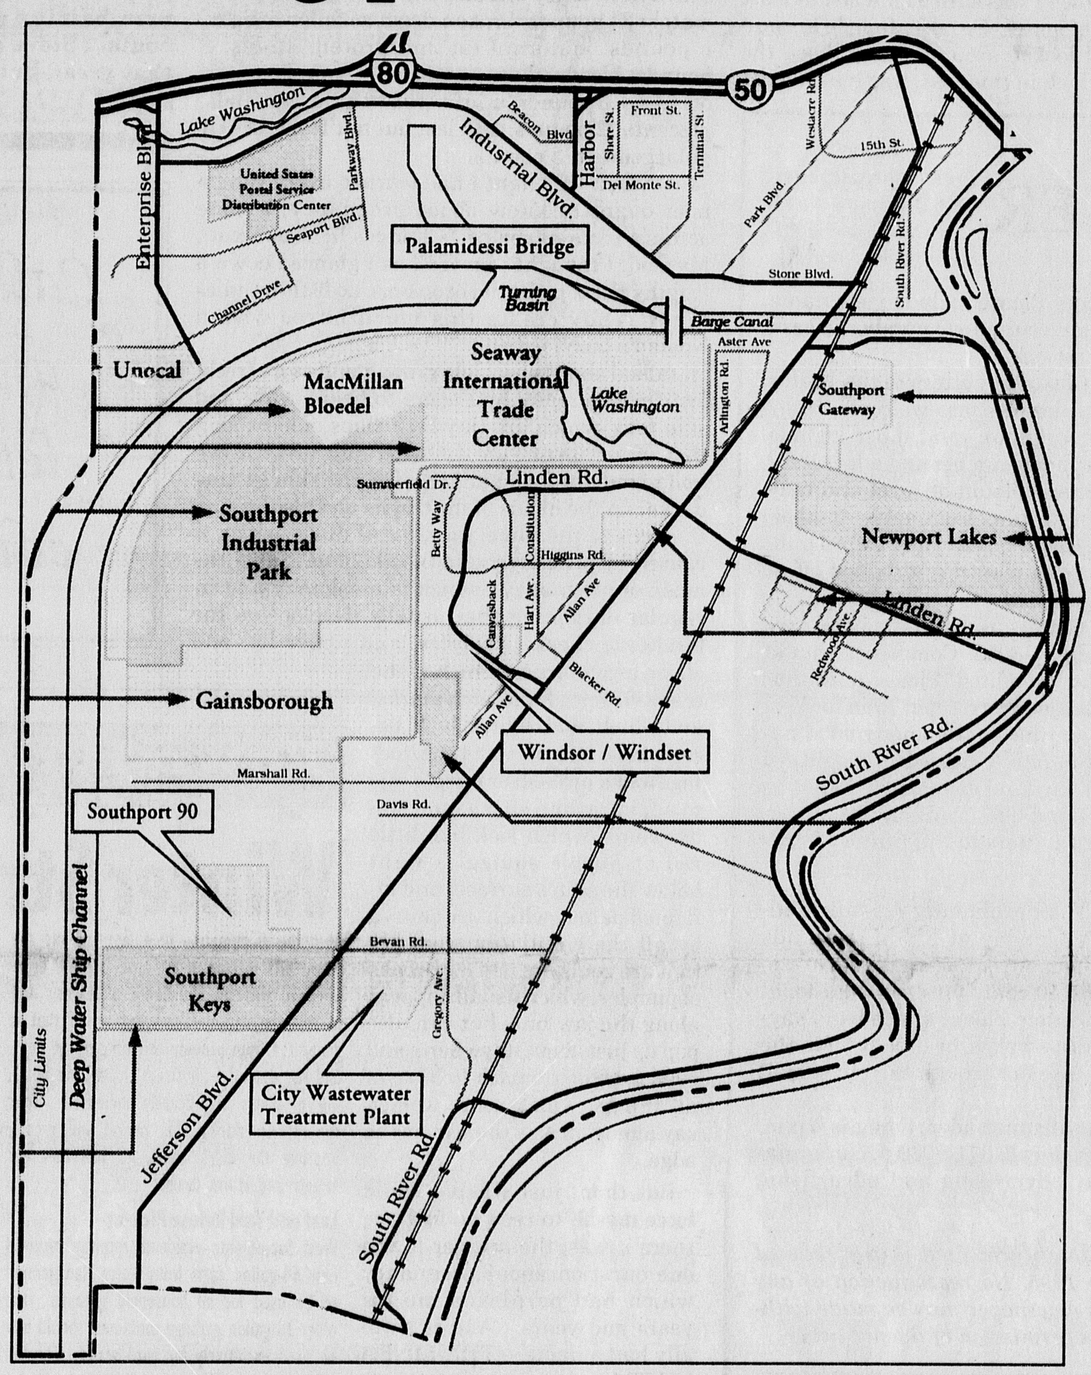

The second proposed district is comprised of the Gains-borough (Bayside) and Southport Gateway residential projects, and would be authorized to raise up to $12 million toward the bond payments. Mello-Roos payments would work out to around $600 per unit annually for homeowners who buy homes in these future developments.

The Gainsborough project is located south of the Southport Industrial Park and close to the deep water channel in southwestern West Sacramento. The Gateway project is located east of Jefferson Blvd. and south of the South River Road connection.

Approval of the Mello-Roos districts depends on landowner approval and city approval.

Construction of a new bridge would relieve a city-imposed building moratorium on Southport, the city's southern half.

Brown & Wood of San Francisco is the legal firm acting as the city's bond counsel in the matter of these two Mello-Roos bond financing districts.

This somewhat outdated City of West Sacramento map of planned development projects shows the location of the "Palamidessi Bridge" intended for construction across the barge canal. Also visible are the Southport Industrial Park (which includes the MacMillan Bloedel paper plant project) and Gainsborough projects to the bridge's south and west. These two, along with the planned Southport Gateway project east of Jefferson Blvd. are proposed as the financial support for the bridge and other improvements. A tentative and controversial location for a new sewage treatment plant near Gregory Rd. is also shown. Approximately two-thirds of the city is visible on this map.

Customers of West Sac hookers may be starting to get the message

By Steve Marschke

The West Sacramento Police Department does not yet have any statistics to show whether its two-month old, high-profile crackdown on the customers of city prostitutes has put a crimp on the hooker trade.

But Sgt. Ray Hensley, who coordinates the attack, says he has seen plenty of evidence to show that these potential "johns" are aware of the new risk of arrest.

"We have our decoys wired (for safety reasons) when they talk to the customers," said Hensley. "Now, we hear the guys saying, 'I know you're a cop, you guys have been on TV for arresting johns,' and so on. But then they still strike a deal and get arrested."

Hensley explained that, contrary to public myth, undercover police officers do not have to admit they are police when they are asked.

"You don't have to tell them you're a cop," he explained. "You can lie in certain situations. You can lie when you're undercover, you can lie in interrogation rooms."

By going after the customers of prostitutes, the police hope to make it harder for the trade to exist. While they will not completely eliminate local streetwalking, said Hensley, they do hope to make it less a trademark of the town.

"When you can drive from one end of West Capitol Ave. to another without seeing someone you're sure is a prostitute, we will have won."

Jennifer Cole, a police officer who works occasionally as a prostitution decoy, agreed with Hensley that most of the "hookers" were trapped in a bad lifestyle because of a dependence on drugs.

"There's one who makes about $6,000 per month, working 10 to 14 hours per day to support her husband and their drug habits. It's all going to drugs and her room," said Cole. "She works more than some of them because she supports her husband."

Cole said that most live in motel rooms -- although those tend to run around $600 per month, which is more expensive that an apartment, for several reasons.

"Although they make a lot of money (typically performing sexual favors for $20 to $100 per customer), they never have a lot at one time. They don't have enough for a security deposit. And an apartment manager would never put up with them using their room for business," said Cole.

Under the police strategy (which is still evolving, said Hensley) officers are allowed to contact any man they see talking to a known prostitute. They can check the man's license plates, take a picture of him, and send a brochure (marked "confidential," from the West Sacramento Police Department) detailing the dangers of AIDS and other pitfalls of prostitutes to his home.

If, during one of their decoy operations, they arrest a man for agreeing to pay money for sex, they try to inconvenience him as much as possible for this misdemeanor -- including several hours in jail.

The man may also have his car towed, which will cost another $100-plus to undo.

By publicizing their efforts, police hope to eventually break the men's habits of coming to

Family of minor sues for $10 million

By Steve Marschke

The family of a teenage West Sacramento girl has filed a lawsuit against a church and its former ministers for $10 million.

Former pastor Don Wisdom pleaded no contest last year to 11 counts of having a sexual relationship with the minor girl, and began a one-year term in county jail in November.

The lawsuit names the former Word of Life Assembly of God Church on Manzanita Way in West Sacramento, as well as former pastors Wisdom and Geneva Lee, and the church's parent orgnizations the Assemblies of God Northern California and Nevada District Council Inc., according to the Sacramento Bee.

Attorneys for the family and for the church were not available for comment Tuesday.

But the Bee quotes the family's attorney as saying that "the people in the church knew that it was happening and didn't stop it."

The District Attorney's office alleged that the sexual relationship occurred from 1994-95, beginning when the girl (whose identity is being withheld because of her age) was 15.

New pastor Claude "Coco" Perez said that the local church is now called Horizon Christian Fellowship, and is still an Assemblies of God-affiliated church. But he stressed Tuesday that the congregation is putting its recent troubles behind it.

"We've got very positive things going on now," he said. "We have about ten original members in the congregation, but this congregation is not the same one that was here when Pastor Wisdom was here."

Perez referred questions on the lawsuit to the church's attorney.

According to the Bee, the lawsuit filed in Yolo County Superior Court seeks punitive damages as well as general and special damages for battery, sexual battery, sexual harassment, negligence, breach of fiduciary duty, intentional infliction of emotional distress, defamation, slander and invasion of privacy.

Yolo Shortline offers alternative to new railroad bridge

Although plans for a new railroad crossing over the barge canal to serve the Port of Sacramento and the planned Southport Industrial Park have been put on ice due to financial constraints, the owners of Yolo Shortline Railroad have proffered what they say is a more cost-effective solution to the rail problem.

The shortline partnership owns a stretch of railway connecting West Sacramento to Clarksburg.

The line proceeds south from the Jefferson Blvd. bridge almost parallel to Jefferson on its west, and will require several road crossings if the city's southern half is developed.

So David Magaw, president and general manager of the railroad, proposes that the city and private developers simply build a connection using the existing

Learning about the 'minor discomforts' of pregnancy

I have a friend who is expecting her first baby any day now. She just returned from Russia, where she was teaching English, and last week she called me from her home in Oakland and said that she desperately needed someone with a big car or truck to pick up her mother at San Francisco's International Airport. After I asked her if her mother had a weight problem, which she didn't find as funny as I thought she would, she told me that her mother was flying up from Los Angeles to help her with the baby, and that she was bringing along lots of goodies, including a brand new crib. "You're the only person I know with a pickup truck," she explained, "and to tell you the truth, even if my car was bigger, I don't think I could make it all the way over to the airport the way I feel." I asked her if she was sick or something, and with a voice very similar to the one my wife often used when she was only days away from giving birth, said, "No, stupid, I'm not sick! But I am 9 months pregnant!"

After I had safely delivered one mother and enough baby paraphernalia to set up a day care center to my friend's apartment in Oakland, I found myself seated in the middle of a very uncomfortable couch with absolutely nothing to do.

"Don't go, Daryl, until we've had a chance to talk," shouted my friend from the kitchen, where she and her mother were engaged in a very animated conversation which I was sure would last at least another couple of hours. So, as I often do in similar situations, I looked around and grabbed the nearest book, which in this case, was lying on the coffee table. When I discovered it was entitled, Your Pregnancy Companion, I immediately returned it to its resting place, even though it was the only book in the whole room. A half-hour or so later, tired of eavesdropping on a conversation which always seemed to return to the subject of stretch marks, I picked the book back up and began to read.

It started off harmlessly enough, suggesting that pregnant women need to give up such things as weight lifting, scuba diving, waterskiing, and of course, all racquet sports. But then, after thumbing through whole chapters on topics like swollen feet, frequent urination, lower back pain, and difficulty in breathing until the baby drops down, I stumbled upon a section called "Your Body At Two Months", and things really began to go downhill.

I reluctantly learned that mothers-to-be need to be prepared for breast tenderness, fatigue, lightheadedness, morning sickness, numb or tingly limbs, and my personal favorite, increased saliva flow. They can also expect to gain approximately 31 pounds, broken down as follows: baby, 8 pounds; maternal fat and protein stores, 8 pounds; blood volume increase, 5 pounds; amniotic fluid, 3 pounds; uterus weight gain, 2 pounds; placenta, 2 pounds; and last but not least, breast enlargement, 3 pounds.

Just when I thought I had learned everything a man ought to know about pregnancy, I came across a section labeled, "Changes In Your Skin". My God, I thought to myself as I glanced down a lengthy list of potential problems, do little bundles of joy really create this much havoc with a woman's body?

It talked about new mole growth and more freckles if you already had some to begin with; and skin tags, which are tiny little flaps of loose skin that often appear on the neck and underarms; and pigmentation changes, with the skin getting darker on the inside of the thighs and also around the area of the navel; and facial flush, which is caused by an increase in blood volume; and 'the mask of pregnancy', which is a splotchy and irregular darkening that usually develops on the forehead, cheeks, temples, and upper lip; and striae gravidarum, which is the scientific term for stretch marks, and which, with a little luck, become less obvious with time, fading from a pinkish or purple hue to a faint, white sheen; and spider veins, which look like little red or purple squiggles right below the skin's surface; and inflamed palms, which are caused by all the circulation changes that are going on; and outbreaks of pimples, which usually appear along the jaw line, but can also pop up just about anywhere; and even terrible stomach itching, of all things, which some women say almost drives them over the edge.

But then, just when I could force myself to read no further, there it was, the answer to the one question about pregnancy which had perplexed me for years and years. And it actually had a name -- THE LINEA NEGRA.

"Guess what I learned today?" I asked my wife with a smile later that night.

"God only knows," she said, not really paying any attention to me.

"Well," I said with scholarly pride, "you remember that dark, vertical, hairy line you used to get every time you got pregnant, you know, the one that went right past your belly button and climbed all the way up your stomach? Well, you're not going to believe this, but that darn thing has actually got a name."

"Who cares!" she shouted, using the same exact two words she had employed some 10 years earlier, right after the birth of our 4th child, when I happened to mention to her that I thought getting a vasectomy might be a little painful.

NOTE: One of my New Year's Resolutions is to stop writing this bloody column, and with that goal in mind, starting this week, My Back Pages will appear in the News-Ledger only every other week. The hope is to slowly fade away and to have a replacement columnist shackled to his or her computer by the spring or early summer. So, if any of you are interested in writing your own column, be it in a guest or weekly format, please contact Steve at 371-8030. The pay isn't all that great, but believe me, the rewards are many!

Winter Street Service

With the combination of a late fall and the recent winter storms, we have become overwhelmed with an abundance of leaves. Add to this the considerable yard refuse that is generated from pruning this time of the year, and the potential for street clutter and flooding problems significantly increases! Your cooperation during this period will greatly improve the City's ability to maintain our streets and storm drains.

Leaf and Yard Refuse Pick-up

West Sacramento residents recently received new 64-gallon carts from Waste Management to be used for all household garbage. The older 30-gallon garbage containers should now be used exclusively for yard waste. This includes grass and weed clippings, shrub and tree prunings and leaves. Branches should be no more than 2" in diameter, and 40" or less in length if they are to be put into the container. There is no limit to the number of yard waste containers that may be placed at the curb. Should you not have enough containers during this heavy leaf season, plastic bags may be used, although residents are encouraged to avoid this whenever possible. Prunings that do not fit in the container may still be bundled and placed at the curb. Bundles should be kept smaller than 3' x 3' and no more than 40 pounds.

Christmas trees are also acceptable for pick-up provided they are cut into 3' - 4' sections and placed at the curb alongside the household garbage.

Because it cannot be properly recycled, yard refuse contaminated by other garbage or debris will not be picked up as yard refuse. If your yard refuse is contaminated, you may either remove the contaminants or call Waste Management to request a special pick-up. This service will result in an additional charge on your garbage bill.

It is our aim to make your refuse service as accommodating and responsive as possible. Should you have any questions, feel free to call City offices at 373-5810 or Waste Management at 374-2700.

Street Maintenance

ONLY the leaves and tree limbs that fall directly onto the street will be picked up by the City Street Crew. Leaves, brush, or grass cuttings which have been placed into the street will not be picked up. The street sweeper will sweep around any piles found on the street.

All leaves, grass clippings, brush, tree limbs, and other refuse originating behind the street curb must be placed in garbage cans, bags, or other containers or tied in bundles and placed at the curb for pick-up on refuse day.

Once a month street sweeping, in the residential areas of the City, will continue throughout the leaf season. Once all the leaves have fallen, street sweeping will return to a once every two month schedule. Removal of parked vehicles from the street on the days that the street sweeper is in your area will allow better cleaning. Questions about the street sweeping schedule should be directed to the Public Works Department at 373-5850.

Burned Out Street Lights

Call the PG&E 24 hour service line at (800) 743-5000. They will want to know the number on the pole, so please have it ready when you call.

Truck enthusiasts should haul themselves to Woodland museum

This 1916 Garford truck is an example of an early tanker used for delivery of gasoline, oil and stove oil to customers. The driver filled five gallon cans from the truck's large tanks and carried them to the customer's storage tank. The Red Crown logo shown on the tank truck was used by Standard Oil for their early day service stations. Red Crown gasoline also had its famous customers. Charles Lindbergh insisted on using Red Crown gasoline for his "Spirit of St. Louis" New York to Paris flight. He said it would give him a little more range per gallon for his famous flight in 1927.

The Garford was an assembled truck, using components from several different suppliers. This truck has a 312 cubic inch Buda L-head 4 cylinder engine, equipped with a Rayfield carburetor and Aero magneto. The transmission is a Brown-Lipe 3 speed. The rear axle is a Sheldon worm-drive type with an 8.66 gear ratio. The trucks top speed is 13 miles per hour. The tires are solid rubber, single front and dual rear, mounted on wood-spoke wheels. The truck has an open cab with a canopy top. The stripped chassis without cab or body weighted 4,355 pounds and cost $2,690 in 1916.

Garfords were made from 1909 to 1915 by the Garford Company of Elyria Ohio. In 1915 the company moved to Lima Ohio and was renamed Garford Motor Truck Co.

This Garford truck is on display at the Hays Antique Truck Museum in Woodland, California. The museum houses nearly 200 trucks representing 120 manufacturers.

OPINION

News-Ledger Editorial

Politics & money are behind biases of the media

A moment, with the New Year, to talk about newspapers and their biases:

It is getting to be a cliche, of course, to complain about the monolithic "liberal" media, while overlooking exceptions to this stereotype.

And there are many exceptions, from individual commentators such as Rush Limbaugh and Paul Harvey, to entire TV networks (and their news programs) owned by such interests as General Electric and other corporations whose dedicated interest in protecting their corporate bottom line makes it unlikely they will encourage truly progressive news reporting.

The nice folks who print this newspaper for the News-Ledger prove another exception, with their own small community newspapers expressing an unquestionably conservative viewpoint.

And with the demise of the (conservative) Sacramento Union, most onlookers agree that Sacramento's only daily pap has become -- if not conservative -- less liberal.

But there is one bias that most media (and nearly all small-town newspapers) are prone to share, and that is an interest in seeing their markets grow.

To most small town newspapers, growth is good.

Newspapers depend on revenue from both subscribers and advertisers to survive. They like to see more subscribers move into their markets, and more advertising businesses come to town. More people in a market area, and more disposable income, means more revenue for a newspaper.

This is why you rarely see a local paper that is anti-growth. It is more common to see them become cheerleaders for anything on a city's drawing boards.

The News-Ledger's owner and editor both believe this attitude is less prevalent among locally owned, independent newspapers (such as this one) than in those that are part of a corporate chain. With a corporate chain, ownership tends to focus only on bottom-line profits, and community service is rarely seen as a newspaper virtue for its own sake.

Independents often "care" more about their community for the simple reason that the people who own it and work for it are closer to the community they are reporting on.

Another kind of bias develops when a newspaper has trouble playing it straight with stories that affect its advertisers. Car dealers in particular (who often buy large, regular blocks of space in their local newspaper) come to think that they deserve a certain reciprocity from the newspaper's news divisions. When the reporters or columnists write something that hurts their business, such as an expose on fraudulent auto sales tactics or a detailed piece on the inferiority of a certain automobile manufacturer, the dealers feel betrayed.

They have been known to pull their advertising -- or threaten to -- unless such negative publicity is stopped. This creates a pressure on the newspaper to shape its news in a way inoffensive to the big advertisers. And that, in turn, is a betrayal of the reader, who expects to hear the story straight and expects a newspaper to keep its "editorial" concerns separate from its advertising department.

How well you think the News-Ledger handles the pressures of bias is of course your call.

But it always pays to pay attention to bias if you're interested in discerning the truth, especially from your news sources.

Letters to the Editor

Audience behavior

This is in response to the letter (News-Ledger 12/27) about the audience behavior at the Westfield Elementary evening performance.

I am the music director at River City (High School in West Sacramento), and I have found the same problems exist at the high school performances as well. Although the audience was very attentive at the Winter Concert, I have had to remind audiences about being quiet and respecting the students' hard work. The students who perform at these concerts (or any time in front of an audience) know that I want them to be as professional as possible. It is very difficult to teach the performance arts when the audience isn't even paying attention!

The hard work that goes into creating, directing, explaining, practicing and performing these concerts isn't always in the forefront of the audience's minds. They just come to a performance to see their child "do his thing," then they are ready to leave. How many other children have worked just as hard for the whole audience to appreciate the whole experience?

I know of other directors who will list correct audience behaviors on a posterboard in front of the entrance way, but do we really need to explain this behavior to adults? Even though we live in an instantaneous society and we can change the channel if we don't like what we are watching, I hope that the art of respecting a live performance is not in the past.

Thanks for treat

City Councilperson Roland Hensley and Eppies Restaurant combined their resources for a special holiday treat.

At the request of councilperson Hensley, Eppies Restaurant donated and cooked six huge, beautiful turkeys for the holiday lunch at the West Sacramento Senior Center. City staff and volunteers were the carvers and servers for over 140 senior citizens at the senior center.

Thanks to all for your generous donation of time and especially the turkeys, which helped make the holiday lunch a special occasion for so many people.

Less service

When I moved to Welcome Grove Mobile Park, the main reason I did so because it was close to work and had good bus service. Since then the City has decreased the bus service and has no known plans to restore it. The City stopped the buses and trucks from using part of West Capitol Avenue in July.

So I ask you, why doesn't the City repair West Capitol Avenue (at the railroad overpass) so that the buses can use it? No money? Baloney, the State gives the City plenty of money to repair these old main highways.

I used to have a bus ever half hour to downtown Sacto., now only one an hour. Fifty percent of my service to my office was cut. Maybe some of the road engineers or road foremen need to get a shovel and go to work. Huh? How about it?

School issues

On Tuesday, January 9, the school board will meet at River City High School to assess the state of education in West Sacramento.

This is an opportunity for the public to learn what is, and is not, happening in our local schools.

It is common knowledge that West Sacramento schools place last in standings within our county and our county is near the bottom in California.

Our State Superintendent of Instruction has made public statements to the effect that we have not been providing an adequate education to our children for the past ten years. This has happened as a result of liberal educational leaders tinkering with the educational process and their tendency to fix things that "ain't broken."

This writer agrees with the state teachers union that it is time to return to the basics. That is the teaching of the three R's.

All our children should be reading at grade level by the third grade. Those not performing at grade level need to be identified and provided with remedial teaching. Many educators stress that grades K through three must be learning to read in order that grades four through 12 can be reading to learn.

Our local business and community leaders need to become more involved in our schools. Without an educated workforce earning a decent income our community cannot prosper.

Most importantly, parents must become more involved in the educational process and hold the system accountable for results. Our school district spends thirty (30) million dollars per year to educate 5300 of our children. We have the personnel capable of doing an excellent job. It is time for the board of education to insist that our educators have the direction and resources needed to improve.

If any of the readers agree that we deserve, and have a right to expect, better results they need to attend the Tuesday meeting to find out where we are now and where we want to go from here.

The Sacramento River registered six feet nine inches, United States gauge at the Southern Pacific bridge yesterday.

John Johnson, caretaker at the West Sacramento headquarters, was a visitor in Escalon during the past week. He was accompanied by his family, and the trip was made in the family automobile.

The promised arrival of Thomas McAnulty at West Sacramento headquarters did not materialize during the last week as published in the last issue of the Independent, but it is likely he may arrive any day to make permanent headquarters in Westgate. Many residents of the district are looking for Mr. McAnulty because of the great promises that have been made following his arrival. It may mean a revival of the good times that were going on in West Sacramento a few years ago when the district was promoted under the guidance of H. W. Furlong.

The north wind of the past two days succeeded in robbing McNally and Partridge of a good deal of their trade in mushrooms. Regular pickers went out as usual to gather the fungus but the north wind had done the damage before their arrival and until another rain there will be little showing in the district. McNally and Partridge also report that the traveling public has not let up for a minute during the past winter for every night their camp is crowded and even people are being turned away because they have not sufficient accommodations. Tourists arriving from the north declare that the weather has forced them south sooner than they anticipated because of its severity. Those tourists also report that labor conditions in the states of Oregon, Washington and Montana are bad, with a great number of men out of employment and a great number waiting for the opening of the spring season to return to Alaska.

John Allerton and L. Borghesi have just returned from an automobile trip that extended as far as Santa Cruz, Monterey, Castorville and other points along the seacoast. They report the weather to be exceedingly good and roads in fine condition.

Salvador Ortez was married in Sacramento last Monday by Justice of the Peace Frank O'Brien to a young lady of the Capital City whose name has not been exactly ascertained by the Independent but believed to be Long. Salvador has just passed his twenty-third year and is an industrious young man with big hopes for the future. He was born in Washington of respected parents and although he did not exactly receive their consent for his marriage they are now wishing him all kinds of good luck in this major event of his young life.

Mike Judge, watchman on the Southern Pacific bridge for several years past, has been laid up during the past three weeks suffering from a very severe cold, bordering on pneumonia. Yesterday he was able to return to his work greatly improved but still somewhat weak after his experience.

Two Chinese were arrested last Saturday following a raid of the previous night on the Chinese places near the M street bridge. On Friday night three Chinamen were taken up by detectives from the district attorney's office and two on Saturday. They have been accused of gambling, although evidence taken at the time of the raid was believed to be insufficient to secure a conviction. It is possible they may plead guilty when brought to trial in the Woodland justice court and be fined as usual to help out the treasury of Yolo County.

Yesterday, Thursday, January 8, Constable Tug Wilson made his first arrest among the Chinese places near the M street bridge. Accompanied by State Narcotic Enforcement Officer Roy Jones and Deputy Sheriff Ogle of Sacramento County, they entered the building south of the Sacramento Northern Railroad tracks and directly west of the end of the M street bridge. A Chinese in the place was using dice or dominoes and playing with another Chinese in the room. No money was passed between the two, but nevertheless Constable Wilson took up the offender before Judge Barry. He gave his name as Fong Gee and pleaded guilty of gambling, after which Judge Barry fined him $100 to help out the treasury of Yolo County.

Warren Silverlock has once more been placed in charge of the Elkhorn ferry, relieving Joe Firman, who has been in charge of the ferry during the past three or four months. Charles White is the other attendant on the Elkhorn ferry.

Maybe not the meanest thief, but one near that classification, is the man who last night stole a mattress from the bed rented by J. J. McNally at Canteen Auto Camp in Yolo County. McNally's rest was disturbed to such extent that he reported the theft to the Sacramento police this morning.

Vera Bucto, aged 3, of Bryte, was at the Sutter Hospital in Sacramento on Sunday recovering from serious injuries to her left eye, received late Saturday, when a firecracker with which she was playing exploded, according to police reports. The girl was rushed to the city emergency hospital, where the sight of the eye was saved by an operation performed by Dr. E. O. Brown. She was then taken to the Sutter Hospital.

Ralph Montgomery was brought to the Yolo County jail Saturday night, on a warrant issued last September. He is charged with bootlegging. Sheriff J. W. Monroe located Montgomery at Washington. The defendant had skipped out during a raid last summer, according to the sheriff.

Mrs. Bernie Robbins Tuesday entertained a number of friends including members of the R. B. C. Sewing Club at a party at her home. CHRIS KRAUTT DIED AT WOODLAND HOSPITAL THURSDAY

After two years of confinement in a Woodland hospital suffering with the infirmities of old age, Chris Krautt died yesterday, Thursday, January 8, 1925.

During several years the old gentleman had been suffering with a badly injured hip and heel and in addition to that was afflicted with rheumatism.

Krautt had been a resident of Washington about thirty years, where he pursued the vocation of teamster to earn a living, but a few years ago was forced to retire when the auto trucks invaded the fields of work for the teamster.

Krautt was a very industrious man of very quiet demeanor and very unassumed habits. All he desired was to be permitted to pursue the even tenor of his way and when he had gone through a hard day's work in the effort to earn a living all he asked was that he be permitted to have his glass of beer in peace and quietness.

Krautt was an inveterate smoker, always using a pipe and seldom or never using a cigar. His habits in this particular were so well known to the boys around Washington that when he was forced to give up actual labor they saw to it that he always had on hand a plentiful supply of tobacco.

So far as is known in this locality he had no relatives in California, but he had been heard to speak of a sister who is a resident of Colorado or Illinois, but who has never, so far as is known, been in communication with him.

He was a native of Holstein, Germany, but came to the United States at the age of 23 years.

He leaves a small estate, sufficient, it is believed, to give him a decent burial. This consists of money in a Sacramento bank which was placed by Krautt several years ago under the control and handling of August Brietzke purposely for this emergency.

In communication with Brietzke last night, the Independent ascertained that arrangements for his funeral would be made this afternoon by Brietzke in Woodland and that the burial will take place at the county seat.

Otherwise, it is believed that he leaves no other estate.

There are 174,947 one-teacher schools in the United States with 3,500,000 children attending these schools.

CONSTABLE WILSON IS IN CHARGE OF PEACE AFFAIRS NOW

Frank Wilson, familiarly known as "Tug" Wilson among the younger men around Washington and Sacramento, assumed the position of constable in Washington township last Tuesday morning following his nomination by Supervisor Buckingham to the position and his confirmation in the position by the unanimous vote of the members of the board of supervisors of Yolo County.

Wilson was born in Washington. During thirty years he has been a permanent resident in the community. He comes from a good family and his parents are still residents of the town.

Speaking to the Independent yesterday, Constable Wilson said:

"I fully appreciate the honor conferred on me by Supervisor Buckingham, and in responding to the demands made upon me will make every effort to show my appreciation.

"I anticipate no trouble in filling the position of constable, for I believe that I have the confidence and support of all the young men around town, and with the guidance of Supervisor Buckingham I hope to be able to make good insofar as the duties of my office are concerned.

"I have no intention to eat raw meat and bark at everybody that comes around me, but I am certainly not of the impression that the exuberant spirits of youth must be killed with a bludgeon of puritanism or reform.

"I acknowledge that human nature has frailties and that the laws of the United States gives the accused person the benefit of the doubt when placed on trial for crime or infractions of the law.

"I see no reason to force the people of the United States into hypocrisy and double-dealing, but in the matter of enforcing the laws of the land I cannot and I will not hesitate to do my duty at any time and at all times.

"I honestly believe that many people are made criminals by imputation, and I believe that many people are forced into crime in the effort to make them toe the mark of obedience.

"I believe that men and women were endowed by God with a free will and so long as they exercise that free will without breaking any of the man-made laws laid down for our regulation the people should be privileged to exercise that free will without limit.

"With this spirit I have entered the position of constable for Washington township. I invite the people to advise me of their grievances. Insofar as it lays in my power I shall be willing to respond, but I do hope that the people will not expect so much from me in this territory that it would rob me of the opportunity of making a living. The office I fill pays but a small salary, not enough to support a family and, therefore, it is incumbent on me to find other work with which I must earn a living, but I am going to try to find that work within the town so that I may be present or nearby when a call comes for my services."

Wilson is an ex-service man. He is of quiet disposition but determined. His temper is of such nature that he is not easily provoked, but God help the reckless offender who runs across him to annoy him or to worry him.

Wilson is a giant in size and weight and on many occasions before now has given good account of himself when called on to assert himself or to defend himself.

GREZORK OUT OF YOLO HOSPITAL

H. T. Grezork, young Russian, who alleged that he was robbed of $250 in a Bryte rooming house about a month ago and was then kicked into insensibility by seven men, recovered sufficiently to leave the Yolo County Hospital in Woodland yesterday.

Grezork is to confer with Constable Henry Buckingham of Washington in an effort to get a trace of his assailants.

He said yesterday that after he was beaten he jumped through a window while the thugs were in another room plotting to throw his body into the Sacramento River.

HUNTING SEASON WILL CONCLUDE ON THE 15TH

Hunters of ducks, geese, quail and cottontails have but to the fifteenth of January to complete their hunting for the present season. This gives the nimrods but seven days more of shooting.

Cold weather has been the chief complaint of the duck hunters during the last few days. The sportsmen have been forced to break the ice covered surface of the marshes and rice fields and some have experienced cases of near freezing. Shooting has improved a little over what it was some time ago, but most of the nimrods report it to be just fair.

AUTO CAMPS ADD TO POPULATION

Six families moved into the West Sacramento Auto Camp since January 1 and in every family of the six there are several children.

Some of these travelers have purposely moved to this section of Yolo County to give their children the opportunity of attending the Washington public school. Some parents have made no bones about telling their reasons for moving to this district.

BUCKINGHAM IN POSITION OF SUPERVISOR SINCE LAST MONDAY

Presenting his credentials at the meeting of the board of supervisors in Woodland last Monday, Henry B. Buckingham was inducted into office after taking the oath administered by County Clerk Saunders and Superior Judge W. A. Anderson.

At the election last November 4, Buckingham was returned to the position of supervisor of the first district of Yolo County by a great majority. After defeating three opponents, he was subjected to another campaign by a write-in candidate but won out without difficulty.

Buckingham is a native of this section of Yolo County. He is thoroughly acquainted with the needs of the district. He knows the necessity of reclamation and he knows the value of the great acreage that is now being protected by levees along the Sacramento River and by levees along the eastern edge of the Yolo basin.

Buckingham is fully aware that the great need of this district is better roads for the farmers so that they may more easily convey their products to the market and so that they may enjoy the privileges of civilization in their farm home life.

It was the knowledge with which he is possessed that prompted the people of the district to return him to office so that they in turn might be benefitted by his experience, his knowledge and his ability as a financier.

Blessed with a very fair disposition and blessed with a knowledge of the needs of the district, the people, all of them, can rely on a fair distribution of the funds of the county to help the locality in which he presides as supervisor.

During the past few years the wealth of the first district of Yolo County has grown enormously. The West Sacramento district has greatly advanced in valuation and in returns from farming products.

The Holland district has made such strides in advancement that a proportionate expenditure of the funds of the county in that district must add considerable to the work of the supervisor.

Combining the two sections—the West Sacramento district and the Holland district—with the district north of Washington and extending as far as Elkhorn, there is an inland empire over which any man might be proud to serve as supervisor.

And the Independent feels that Henry Buckingham will respond to the demands of the occasion doing justice, not only to the center of population in Washington, but even to the people living in the most extreme section of the first district of Yolo County.

ESTATE OF HENRY LEINBERGER IS UNDER PROBATE

Woodland, Jan. 5.—Excepting to recite that the estate exceeds $10,000 in value, the petition for probate of the will of the late Henry Leinberger, retired wholesale butcher, who died at the age of 94 years, does not specify the worth of the real and personal property to be inherited by his daughter, Mrs. Louisa Smith, and his sons, Henry Leinberger, Jr., and Charles Leinberger.

Charles Leinberger filed a petition late Saturday to be named administrator. Attorney H. L. Huston will represent the petitioner.

The venerable Washington man left a will bearing the date May 15, 1924.

The real property includes two lots at Washington of the approximate value of $5,000, and a one-half interest in an entire block in the same township of the value of $6,000.

The personal property includes stocks worth $5,000.

Leinberger died December 26. He was the father of the late Supervisor William Leinberger.

BOARD NAMES VIEWERS TO SEE NEW ROAD

Woodland, Jan. 6.—One of Supervisor W. E. M. Beardslee's last official acts before retiring in favor of Henry Buckingham, his conqueror at the polls, yesterday was to have the board appoint viewers for a new road to the first district. Names to look over the proposed road are A. G. Proctor, John Smith, Jr., and J. W. Coons.

HIGHWAY COMMISSION MEETING TO BE HELD ON JANUARY 14TH

The Washington Boosters' Club at its meeting last Tuesday evening in the town hall went over, once more, the details of the meeting to be held January 14 before the state highway commissioners concerning the construction of a stretch of highway through the town of Washington.

The Boosters' Club is extremely anxious that the decision of the highway commission engineers to route the roadway to the M street bridge instead of the Southern Pacific bridge should be changed so that the taxpayers of the town of Washington may be given the benefit of the state highway through the town.

In previous issues of this paper it was explained that the highway commission has granted this hearing in order that the people, the taxpayers, may have the opportunity of explaining their stand in the matter.

Secretary Frank Mixon of the highway commission, an old resident of Yolo County, made the arrangements for the hearing to be held next Wednesday afternoon at 1:30 p. m. It was impressed on him that the people of the town of Washington would not be satisfied unless given the opportunity to voice their feelings.

He consented and arranged with the commissioners that the people of Washington should be heard next Wednesday afternoon.

The hearing will take place on the fifth floor of the Forum Building in Sacramento.

The Boosters' Club has arranged that it will be represented at that meeting by Joesph Pereira.

Other taxpayers of the community are also to be present, among them being the business men so deeply interested in securing the road in its passage through the town.

Ex-supervisor Ed. Palm has expressed himself as being willing to make a talk before the members of the highway commission. Supervisor Henry Buckingham will also be present unless some unforseen accident may prevent him.

Others who have signified a willingness to appear are George Beale, Ed. Moss and M. Doyle.

Secretary Mixon is extremely anxious that the selfish motive of personal aggrandizement may be subdued during the hearing. He is also anxious that there be no disturbance but that the arguments made by the property owners be advanced logically, sincerely and as reasonably as possible. He says that more can be secured in this way than any vain attempt at bull-dozing or threatening the commissioners.

Mixon also says that there is no necessity for a great crowd at the hearing and that any disturbance would surely mitigate against the best interests of the taxpayers of the town of Washington.

A healthy adult may lose nearly a quart of blood before serious results become apparent.

Grief support offered at no charge by hospice

Yolo Hospice will offer a free Grief Support Group to residents of Yolo County and Dixon. The group will meet Wednesday evenings from 7:30 to 9 p.m. for eight weeks starting on January 17 and ending on March 6. The sessions, facilitated by Bereavement Counselors, Susanne Hikida, MFCC and Sandra Daskalos, MFCC Intern, will be held at Yolo Hospice's office, 132 E Street, Suite 3A, next to the movie theater/parking garage. Both buildings are handicap accessible. There is no fee for participants, although donations are always welcomed.

Enrollment is on a space available basis; so phone preregistration is required. Please call 758-5566 if you live in Woodland, Davis or Dixon (a local number with no long distance charges) or call toll free (800) 491-7711 if you live in other parts of Yolo County. First priority will be given to family members who have been served by Yolo Hospice during the last year.

To enable the group to share similar experiences, participants will be limited to area residents who have experienced the death of a loved one or friend due to any terminal illness, cancer, or any other lingering illnesses resulting in death during the last year, regardless of where the death occurred or whether the patient was served by Yolo Hospice.

Yolo Hospice, since 1979, has been serving patients and families facing life-limiting illness in greater Yolo County and Dixon with professional and volunteer services at no charge or direct cost. It is the only hospice located in Yolo County. Annually, Yolo Hospice helps nearly half of the cancer patients as well as patients of all ages suffering from other types of terminal illness. Yolo Hospice expanded its services in March of 1994 when it became a State Licensed and Medicare/Medi-Cal Certified Hospice. New services include regular visits of nurses, medical social workers, certified home health aides and 24-hour on-call availability of nurses. Yolo Hospice also provides other services such as chaplain visits, a caregiver support group and bereavement. These new services were added to the volunteer patient care and nursing services which Yolo Hospice had offered for the last 15 years.

West Sacramento for a prostitute.

"Most of the time, these guys do not live in West Sacramento," he said. "This is not something you want to go around the corner to shop for. They want to be as covert as they can be."

The police department is working closely with the John H. Jones Community Clinic, said Hensley, to work on a plan for rehabilitating the prostitutes themselves.

About 32 regular prostitutes (including three men) live in the city, he said. In a survey by the clinic, all admitted to drug use and 29 have admitted the use of intravenous drugs. 22 of those have admitted sharing needles (a prime cause of the spread of the AIDS virus) with others.

Hensley and Cole said that most of the veteran prostitutes realize they are trapped in a depressed lifestyle between drugs and hooking, but some of the younger ones think there is some "glamour" in it.

Some say they have plans for breaking out of the trade, although few have saved any money towards these plans.

"If we make this work, we're going to have 32 prostitutes having a tough time getting a job and supporting their drug habits. What are they going to do?," asked Hensley. "We want to get them into a facility to clean them up and get them a job."

Sobriety and training programs may have to be mandatory for awhile for those convicted of prostitution, he said, but could be voluntary as the individual makes progress.

line to come into the industrial park and port from the south.

The new line would extend west from the existing line near the city's southern limits, then travel north towards planned development near the barge canal.

Magaw estimates (roughly) that the cost of this option would be about $4 million -- much cheaper than the crossings and bridge would cost if a rail bridge is installed as part of the planned Palamidessi Bridge near Stone Blvd.

The option would necessitate one more road/railway crossing, Magaw adds, but that would be at Jefferson Blvd. where it would have little traffic near southern city limits.

If a new railroad bridge is eventually built, Magaw's proposal states, "Yolo Shortline's existing railroad line between the port canal and the connection of the new line at the south edge of West Sacramento could be removed, eliminating at least three and potentially six public railroad grade crossings."

Fellow shortline partner "Buzz" Jones said none of the other parties involved have appeared very interested in this proposal.

Fat? Sick and Tired?

So was I. Overweight, suffering from chronic fatigue, experiencing hair loss, anxiety resulting in heart palpitations, and poor diet attached to a high stress work environment, blah, blah, blah. . . (Sound familiar?)

Well, today I have lost over 50 lbs., I weigh what I did as a high school junior nearly 18 years ago, the hair loss has stopped, the heart problems have ceased, my diet has greatly improved, and I no longer experience the high stress in virtually the same line of business.

This may not work for everyone, but if you want to know how to get off the track to a short life-span and one that may add years to a more productive and healthier life, simply call (800) 836-9180. I will send you a free tape, and personally return your call.

I wouldn't be offering this product to you if I hadn't used it for over 1 1/2 years and believed in it myself.

interactions on a scale that would have overwhelmed our predecessors.

The tremendous growth of organizations and the nature of the workplace in American during this century was based on hierarchial organizations, distinct separation of work responsibilities (the job description), and physical controls that shaped and restricted the face-to-face communication that controlled "work." As we prepare to enter the next century, the rules have changed, and the business winners and losers of the world will be those to adapt to and take advantage of the new rules.

The most significant of these changes will be more personal freedom, created by the end of physical restraints, as the communications revolution literally redefines the "work place" to be, literally, wherever you choose to work.

If you can work from anywhere, there is no need to be anywhere. No demand to be in a particular building, sitting next to particular people, at a particular time. There will always be a value in "face time," but physical interactions in set physical locations will not longer dictate and shape what we consider to be our work.

The first wave of technologies have set these changes into motion. Cellular phones, pagers, faxes, modems, e-mail, the Internet, are all terms which have already found their place in American business.

The new wave may be more subtle, but will be equally profound in its impact. Technology will literally set us free to communicate with virtually anyone, at any time, from anywhere -- cheaply, efficiently, easily. Cellular, digital, air-to-ground and messaging services will become commonplace. The wireless revolution will enable any combination of people anywhere at anytime to communicate easily, exchanging information by voice, data or visual means. This ability becomes something you carry with all the time -- an integral, seamless, natural part of life.

How we handle and use this new power to our advantage will shape our business destinies and our professional and personal lives. Because there will be no punching of the clock -- no one will tell us when to stop or begin our work -- we must take responsibility for those decisions. It will be easier, more pleasurable to work, but easier as well to submit to the frequent urgencies of work. Increased freedom will carry with it increased responsibility for managing our own lives, personal and professional.

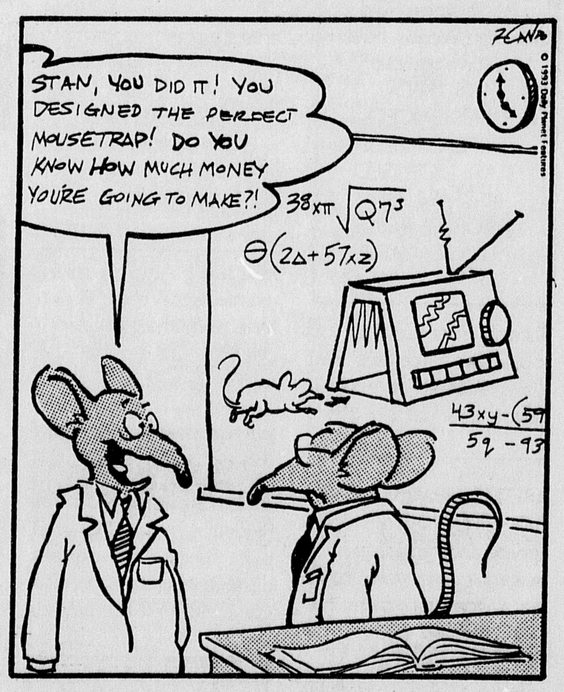

Change is never easy. Many of us are comfortable with how work has been conducted. We have been successful. Our businesses have flourished. Why change?

Because the new realities are here, today. The companies that accept this and take advantage of it will flourish. They will provide the work place environment that attracts the most talented and motivated of employees. They will provide the best client services, the most efficient products. They will move the quickest, make the best decisions, operate the most cost-effectively. Ultimately, they will win. The work place is changing, has changed and will continue to change. We must accept that -- prospering and enjoying a greater personal freedom -- or face diminished competitiveness.

The choice is ours, and it should be an easy one.
